1. Woody Guthrie

Woody Guthrie is widely regarded as one of the most influential figures in American roots music. His iconic songs about social injustice and the struggles of the working class have resonated with generations of listeners. With his unique storytelling abilities and distinctive folk sound, Guthrie's impact on American music cannot be overstated.

2. Robert Johnson

Robert Johnson is considered the king of the Delta blues. His haunting guitar playing and powerful vocals have captivated audiences for decades. Johnson's recordings, although few in number, have become timeless classics and have influenced countless musicians in the blues and rock genres.

3. Bill Monroe

Bill Monroe is often referred to as the father of bluegrass music. His innovative approach to traditional music fused elements of old-time mountain music with jazz, resulting in a new and exciting sound. Monroe's virtuosic mandolin playing and heartfelt vocals have made him an icon in the world of American roots music.

Association for Recorded Sound Collections Certificate of Merit for the Best Historical Research in Recorded Roots or World Music, 2019

A&R Pioneers offers the first comprehensive account of the diverse group of men and women who pioneered artists-and-repertoire (A&R) work in the early US recording industry. In the process, they helped create much of what we now think of as American roots music. Resourceful, innovative, and, at times, shockingly unscrupulous, they scouted and signed many of the singers and musicians who came to define American roots music between the two world wars. They also shaped the repertoires and musical styles of their discoveries, supervised recording sessions, and then devised marketing campaigns to sell the resulting records. By World War II, they had helped redefine the canons of American popular music and established the basic structure and practices of the modern recording industry. Moreover, though their musical interests, talents, and sensibilities varied enormously, these A&R pioneers created the template for the job that would subsequently become known as "record producer."

Without Ralph Peer, Art Satherley, Frank Walker, Polk C. Brockman, Eli Oberstein, Don Law, Lester Melrose, J. Mayo Williams, John Hammond, Helen Oakley Dance, and a whole army of lesser known but often hugely influential A&R representatives, the music of Bessie Smith and Bob Wills, of the Carter Family and Count Basie, of Robert Johnson and Jimmie Rodgers may never have found its way onto commercial records and into the heart of America's musical heritage. This is their story.
