A Passion for Preservation

Born in 1888, Pearl Chase witnessed Santa Barbara's transformation from a small Spanish colonial town to a bustling urban center. Blessed with a keen eye for architectural beauty, she became increasingly alarmed by the rapid destruction and neglect of the city's historical buildings and landmarks.

Determined to make a difference, Pearl Chase founded the Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation in 1924. This non-profit organization endeavored to protect and restore the city's iconic architectural treasures while promoting awareness of Santa Barbara's rich cultural heritage.
