

The Ancient Alien History Of North America

Did ancient aliens visit North America thousands of years ago? This is a question that has intrigued many scholars, researchers, and enthusiasts. While mainstream history often disregards the idea, there are numerous pieces of evidence that suggest a connection between ancient civilizations in North America and extraterrestrial beings.

The Mysterious Ancient Structures

When we think of ancient structures, we often envision iconic sites such as Stonehenge or the Pyramids of Giza. However, North America is home to its own mysterious structures that defy conventional explanations. One such example is the ancient city of Teotihuacan in Mexico. This city, which predates the Aztecs, is believed to have been built with advanced architectural knowledge that the indigenous people of the time could not possess.

Similar enigmas can be found in the United States as well. The ancient Native American site of Cahokia, located near modern-day St. Louis, boasts massive earthworks and structures reminiscent of ancient civilizations elsewhere in the world. Questions arise as to how these structures were constructed, inspiring theories related to extraterrestrial assistance.

Ancient Aliens and Native American Mythology

Native American mythology is filled with references to beings from the stars. The Hopi tribe, for example, believe in "Kachinas," spiritual beings that come from the sky and interact with humanity. These beings are often depicted wearing helmets that resemble a modern astronaut's gear, raising fascinating parallels between ancient Native American stories and the concept of extraterrestrial life.

The Navajo tribe also has legends that speak of "Ant People" who emerged from underground to teach them various skills and knowledge. The descriptions of these Ant People closely resemble the classic depictions of Grey aliens, adding another layer of intrigue to the ancient alien history of North America.

Evidence in Ancient Art

Artwork has long been a way for civilizations to convey their beliefs and experiences. In North America, ancient rock art showcases strange humanoid figures with elongated heads and large eyes, reminiscent of the classic alien archetype. These figures are often depicted alongside animals and other symbols, suggesting a connection between ancient humans and beings from another world.

Additionally, there have been discoveries of ancient artifacts that depict what appears to be advanced technology. A famous example is the "Lolladoff Plate" found in Nepal, which shows a perfectly carved disc with intricate details resembling modern-day helicopters, submarines, and airplanes. While this artifact isn't directly related to North America, it reflects the possibility of ancient civilizations having access to knowledge beyond their technological capabilities.

The Anomalies of Ancient DNA

Genetic research has also shed light on the potential involvement of ancient aliens in North America. The analysis of Native American DNA has revealed markers that point to an unknown source of heritage, indicating the interbreeding of ancient humans with a different species. Could this unknown source be extraterrestrial in nature, providing an explanation for the anomalies found in Native American genetic makeup?

The Mystery Continues

While these pieces of evidence may not definitively prove the existence of ancient aliens in North America, they certainly raise intriguing questions. The ancient structures, the mythology, the art, and the DNA anomalies all contribute to a larger narrative that suggests encounters with beings from another world.

The study of ancient alien history in North America is an ongoing journey, full of mystery and wonder. As we continue to explore our past and delve into the unknown, the possibility that our early ancestors had encounters with extraterrestrial beings becomes more than just a far-fetched fantasy. It becomes a tantalizing prospect that may hold the key to uncovering the true origins of human civilization on this continent.

So, did ancient aliens visit North America? The answer may lie hidden within the pages of history, waiting to be unraveled and understood.

In Central America doctors of different colors came down out of the sky, mated with humans and begat 1,200 children. Nearby lived the Magic Wallas, a tribe of white Indians with yellow hair whom bullets could not touch. They flew through the sky, controlled the weather, and spoke the language of today's Nordic extraterrestrials.

In North America a supernatural race befriended the Cherokee Indians and may have transported an entire village to another world as in the biblical Rapture. Flying machines empowered whichever Medicine Man possessed one, while giants produced children with humans in legends that match those of the flesh-and-blood fairies of Ireland, which in turn match encounters with extraterrestrials today. Evidence traces a migration of giant Nordic-type beings from Ireland and Wales to the Americas, where we've found giant mummies with red and yellow hair.

A North American base of giant white extraterrestrials existed just a few decades ago near where the Paiute Indians encountered mysterious white entities, and where Chinese monks saw strange white-haired women in the 6th century A.D. near the Kingdom of Fu-sang. This is the same region in which we've found an underground city-complex filled with giant mummies and advanced technology, and where archeological discoveries match the Fu-sang legends.

The conquistadors upon their arrival in the Americas encountered giant white-skinned yellow-haired Indians with ties to the gods of Celtic Ireland and Mycenaean Greece. They also met red-haired Indians who spoke archaic dialects of Irish and Welsh, and documented strange ancestral legends of travelers from distant lands whose activities suggest the British Isles. Were they ordinary migrants who made their way across the ocean? Or were they descended from the Celtic gods? Did they predate Native Americans whose own legends claim that humans are not the first peoples on Earth?

Inexplicable recessive genes in some Native Americans could be the Holy Grail of extraterrestrial proof, as would studying the DNA of big-headed skeletons, big-brained skulls, and giant mummies.

In the midst of it all were colonies of Moon-eyed people who came out only at night because their bodies could not tolerate sunlight. Archeological artifacts from North and Central America depict people whose eyes are always closed as if squinting, and gods wearing goggles as if to protect their eyes, were these the Moon-eyed people of legend? Is this America's secret history?
