The leading lady of our story, the HMS Fortune, a battleship known for its exceptional power and resilience, embarked on a journey that would shape its legacy forever. Packed with brave men eager to defend their homeland, this ship became a beacon of hope amid the stormy seas.

A Battle Against the Odds

The HMS Fortune found itself in the heart of numerous conflicts, from treacherous skirmishes to full-scale naval battles. The ship's crew, a combination of seasoned sailors and fresh recruits, were bonded by a shared determination to protect and survive. They faced enemy submarines, relentless aerial attacks, and overwhelming firepower, yet their resilience never wavered.

One particular incident would forever be etched in the annals of war history. In the dead of night, the HMS Fortune found itself surrounded by enemy warships, outgunned and outnumbered. The odds were stacked against them, but they refused to succumb to despair. Through sheer determination and strategic brilliance, they devised a plan that would lead to one of the most heroic victories in naval warfare.

The Last Stand of the HMS Fortune

As the enemy closed in, the crew of the HMS Fortune mustered every ounce of courage they had left. Under the cover of darkness, they executed an audacious plan - a surprise attack that caught the opposition off guard. The battle was fierce, but the crew's unwavering spirit proved to be their greatest weapon.

For days, the sea raged with cannon fire, explosions echoed throughout, and the determined men on board fought valiantly. In this thrilling culmination of grit and heroism, the enemy fleet was ultimately vanquished. The HMS Fortune emerged victorious, making its mark as one of the most legendary battleships in history.

A unique perspective on Australia's World War II flagship.

This fifth book in the Series is a description of the service during World War II of the Australian heavy cruiser, HMAS Australia, including the period when Allan's great-uncle, Bobby Forbes, was a crew member.

HMAS Australia was a lucky ship. By mid-1943 she had served in the Arctic, Atlantic, Indian and Southern Oceans and completed five sea patrols in the hotly contested Coral Sea – known colloquially as ‘the Paddock’ – thus giving a good insight to the Battle for Australia phase of the Australian Campaign. She had narrowly averted disaster on several occasions, including in the Battle of Savo Island off Guadalcanal, where her sister ship, HMAS Canberra, was sunk. Her luck continued in the second half of 1943 with Bobby Forbes on board as the War progressed from the Coral Sea to the waters north of New Guinea. But this period was the last of her luck. In late 1944 and early 1945, off the Philippines, HMAS Australia was struck by numerous Japanese aircraft flying into her deliberately. HMAS Australia had the most colourful service of any Australian Navy ship in World War II, but that service was ended by the kamikazes. She did not sink, but her war was over.

The story of HMAS Australia brings to an end the trilogy of books on the service of Bobby Forbes. By March 1944, when he left HMAS Australia, he had sailed in all of the world's oceans and fought against all of Australia's foes of World War II.
