My first stop was West Martello Tower, a historic landmark that dates back to the Civil War era. This fort-turned-museum provided a glimpse into the island's intriguing past, with its well-preserved architecture and exhibits showcasing the rich heritage of Key West. From there, I made my way to the famous Ernest Hemingway Home and Museum, where the legendary writer found solace and inspiration among the idyllic surroundings.

Key West is renowned for its marvellous natural beauty, and I was determined to explore every inch of it. My next adventure took me to the Florida Keys Eco-Discovery Center, where I delved into the world of marine life through engaging exhibits and interactive displays. Witnessing the colorful coral reefs, exotic fish species, and fascinating marine ecosystems left me in awe of the wonders that lie beneath the waves.

Afterwards, I headed towards the famous Key West Butterfly and Nature Conservatory, a place that feels like stepping into a magical fairytale. Surrounded by thousands of graceful butterflies fluttering through lush tropical gardens, I felt a profound sense of tranquility and connectedness to nature. It was a surreal experience that I will forever cherish.

No travel diary is complete without indulging in the local cuisine, and Key West offers a delectable array of culinary delights. From fresh seafood caught that day to mouth-watering key lime pie, my taste buds were treated to a feast of flavors that captivated my senses.

One of my favorite dining experiences was at Blue Heaven, a quintessential Key West eatery known for its laid-back atmosphere and mouthwatering Caribbean-inspired dishes. As I savored every bite of their famous key lime pie, I couldn't help but feel a sense of complete contentment.

Sunset Magic

As the day drew to a close, I found myself wandering towards Mallory Square, where locals and tourists alike gather to witness the breathtaking sunset ritual that Key West is famous for. “Signature City—Key West” was the Road Scholar educational program we took to learn about the city. It’s at the southernmost tip of the U.S. with lots to see and do and eat. See Ernest Hemingway’s house with his menagerie of friendly well-fed six-toed cats. Go to the Butterfly Conservatory and walk among the butterflies and birds—so exotic and colorful. Visit the Tennessee Williams Museum where you will view the most memorabilia of his work in the world. Lots of history there—learn about the architecture, Audubon, shipwrecks, and the redstone Custom House. Highly recommended.
