We were very honored to have been the editor staff for Jerry S. Dixon on both his book, “Rocky Traverse” and his book, “Wild for Alaska” and he bestowed another honor to us when he allowed us to publish his second book. Working with Jerry was a journalistic experience like no other. He was able to take us along with him through his words – up the mountains he climbed, through the waters he navigated and on the trips he took. We also got to experience exciting life through him and then gratefully we were able to keep his life experiences alive forever for others to enjoy. Jerry had been a smokejumper, a fire management officer and a fire ecologist for the Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and National Park Service. He had been a Yukon River angler and a cabin builder, a climber, a kayaker, an extreme skier, a conservationist, a guide, a writer and a teacher of the gifted... this adventure, Wild For Alaska, allows anyone taking the time to read to be able to see Alaska through the eyes of beauty, fun, and excitement - both the past, present-day, and the future.
